Dearest Ruth,

I knew long ago that this was going to happen, but that doesn't make the fact any easier to bear. My first impulse was to come to you at once; you are the only person who could possibly know how much I loved George, & so I felt that I know something of ~~of~~ what you have got to bear. But probably you would rather not be made to face anyone at the moment. If only I could be of some real comfort to you!

I am proud and thankful that I have a right to some responsibility for his son, and I shall try

through him to be worthy of the trust that you & George thought fit to put in me.

I cannot possibly express what I feel.
If I can help you in any sort of way please command me. I shall come to Cambridge next Saturday
if you will be there.

Yours

Geoffrey Keynes
