

Ms. J. Porter found the Rev. Mr. Van der Myer so surrounded by persons thronging to converse with him, the day she had the pleasure of seeing him in the Drawing-room of Mr. Palmer in Acre that she had no opportunity of asking him whether his goodness in sending her first letter to Brussels for Mr. B. had been successful. —

She therefore, on a venture that it may have been fortunate, (though she has had no acknowledgment of it from
